Undergraduate Thesis

"Assessing the Impact of Ridesharing Services on Mode Choice - A Case of Dhaka City"

Ridesharing services are very new transportation mode in Bangladesh. However, it has already become a popular traveling mode in Dhaka city. Therefore, the use of some other transportation mode has been decreased. This sudden popularity creates curiosity to know the influencing factors of Ridesharing services and the impact it is creating on other modes. This study has explored those two questions. To identify the influencing factors of Ridesharing services and to identify the impact on other modes. This study found that if one wants to travel a longer distance in a short time, he/she might use Ridesharing service. He/she can also bear the extra money it costs. Generally, young people use Ridesharing service more frequently. Ridesharing services were invented to decrease Private Car usage on the road. But Private Car users are not interested in Ridesharing services. CNG is the most affected mode for the introduction of Ridesharing services. Surprisingly Public Transport users are interested in the use of Ridesharing services.
